Jobs

In teams of 4, you have 5 minutes to list jobs people do where they can change the world.

Grammar

a) What has Obama done to change the world?

b) What did Gandhi do to change the world?

Discuss with your partner: what are the differences between a) and b)?

Discussion / Writing:

Obama has shown that black people can be much better than white people.

Gandhi proved that you can change things without violence.

Now, in your groups, write at least 10 sentences like these, about people, or jobs, on your list.

What jobs do these people have?

Match:

1/Graffiti artist Mohammed Ali

2/Civil rights activist Angela Davis

3/Newsreader and journalist Jon Snow

4/Primatologist Jane Goodall

5/Novelist, poet and monk Jeet Thayil

a)

b) c) d) e)

Discuss:

What do you think these 5 people have done to change the world? And who has done most?

Angela – activist

Jeet – novelist

Jon – newsreader

Jane – primatologist

Mohammed – graffiti artist

What do these words mean? Discuss gang

to tweet / Twitter

massacre

Angela the activist

Jane the primatologist

Mohammed the graffiti artist

Jon the newsreader

If you could interview these people,
what would you like to ask them?

eg. Jane, why are chimps important?

Mohammed, have you ever been arrested?

Angela, what are you fighting for now?

Jon, what is the most important story
in the news at the moment?

Write 5 more questions

Speaking

In pairs, A is an interviewer and B is an important person (Jon Snow, Angela Davis, Jane Goodall, Mohammed Ali).

Reading:

In groups, read to match the questions and answers for each interview

Or, if learners all have access to computers, they can read all the interviews on-line, reading to find out how each person has tried to change the world:

Speaking

Stand up in 2 concentric circles

Inside circle turn out – you are the interviewers

Outside circle turn in – you are important people:
Jon Snow / Jane Goodall / Angela Davis /
Mohammed Ali (when the teacher says)

When the teacher claps, inside circle moves round clockwise to get a different partner

When the teacher says, swap
so the outside circle are the interviewers
